

Cancer Survivorship: Embracing the Future Third Biennial Cancer Survivorship Research Conference

October 4 - 6, 2006
Bethesda North Marriott Hotel
Bethesda, MD

Please be sure to mark your calendars for the third biennial cancer survivorship research conference entitled, Cancer Survivorship: Embracing the Future, which will be held October 4-6, 2006 at the Bethesda North Marriott Hotel, in Bethesda, Maryland. This conference is sponsored by the NCI's Office of Cancer Survivorship, the American Cancer Society, and joining us as a new partner this year, the Lance Armstrong Foundation.

This year's conference will highlight future directions of cancer survivorship research and provide an opportunity for researchers across multidisciplinary fields, health care professionals, federal scientists, graduate students in health-related sciences, community-based advocates, state public health planners, cancer survivors and families to share innovative research advances and interventions, methods and other experiences.

Key aims of the conference include:

- (1) identifying future directions of cancer survivorship research;
- (2) examining advances in e-health and communications;
- (3) identifying challenges to follow-up survivorship care;
- (4) understanding and addressing the needs of cancer caregivers and families;
and
- (5) reviewing research and strategies to address health disparities in cancer survivorship.

We hope to see many of you there! Additional conference details will be available in the coming weeks.

Please feel free to forward this message to all interested colleagues.
